Dropbox and Asana allow you to seamlessly collaborate on tasks and files—keeping your team accountable and efficient

Teams can track any kind of work with Asana, and through the integration with Dropbox, they can access relevant information and files alongside their work. Asana's integration with Dropbox allows you to attach a file from Dropbox to any task in Asana in just a few clicks. When updates are made to files, they will automatically be updated in the task.

Track all your work in one place
Attach files relevant to the tasks you're tracking in Asana so you have all the information you need to get your work done

One click access
In one click you can access your entire library of Dropbox files, allowing you to browse and choose the file you want to attach to your Asana task

Automatic updates
Keep version control under control—once a file is updated in Dropbox, it will automatically update in the Asana task

"We've found Dropbox to be the best way to share and organize our thousands of production files. We've always wanted the ability to assign, comment on and prioritize them in Asana. Now, we can do just that."
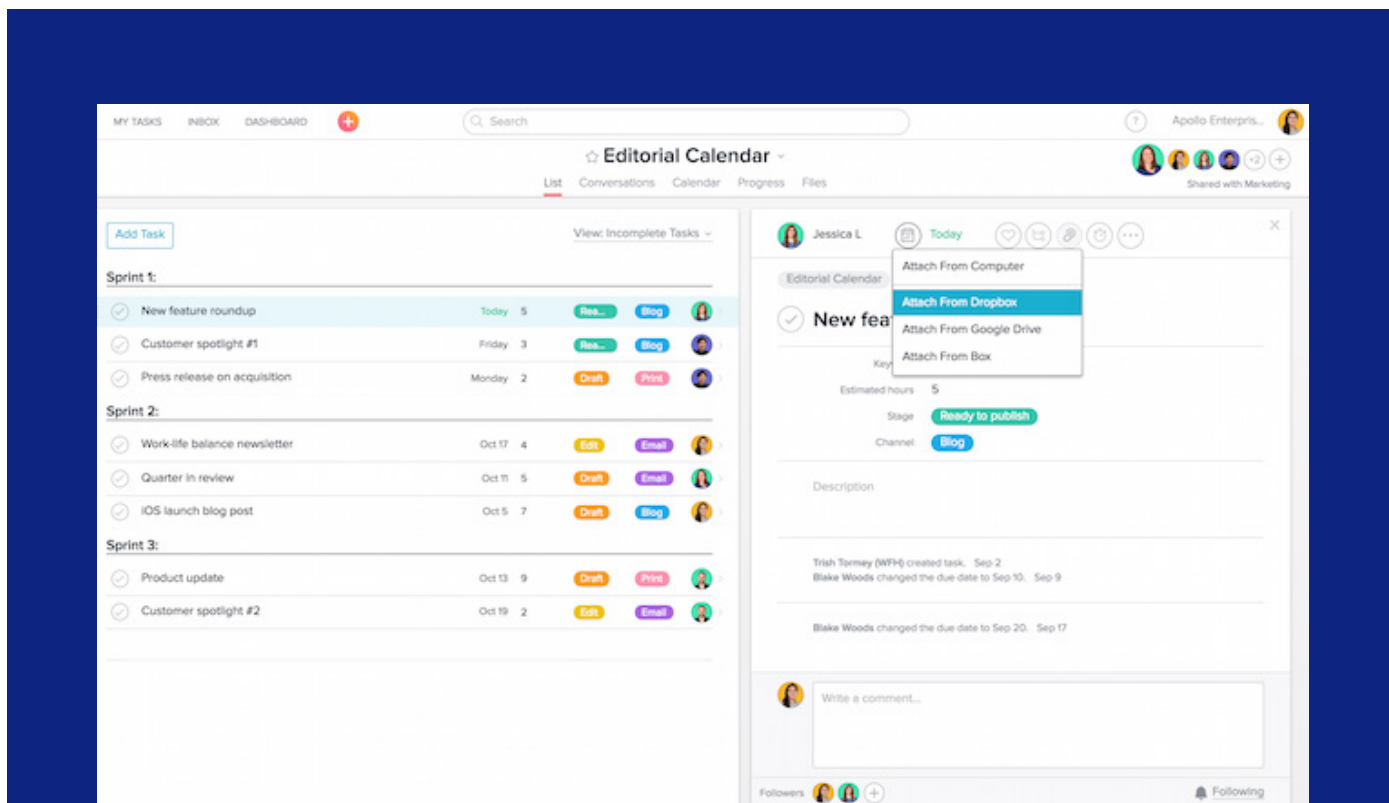

Tyler Ginter
Executive Producer of high-end film production company, Variable

"Now that we can attach Dropbox files to tasks in Asana, every file can live in one place. Our workflow is just that much smoother."

Christopher Rising
