

Keep your team in sync to move projects forward

Whether you're pitching a project to a client or working on a job site, you need to be able to access your files. That's why Dropbox has partnered with Fieldwire, a centralized, mobile-first platform for construction crews to access and manage project documentation and communications.

Upload, access, and modify the latest documents in Fieldwire through a two-way integration with Dropbox to ensure all team members and external collaborators are working off the same set of documents

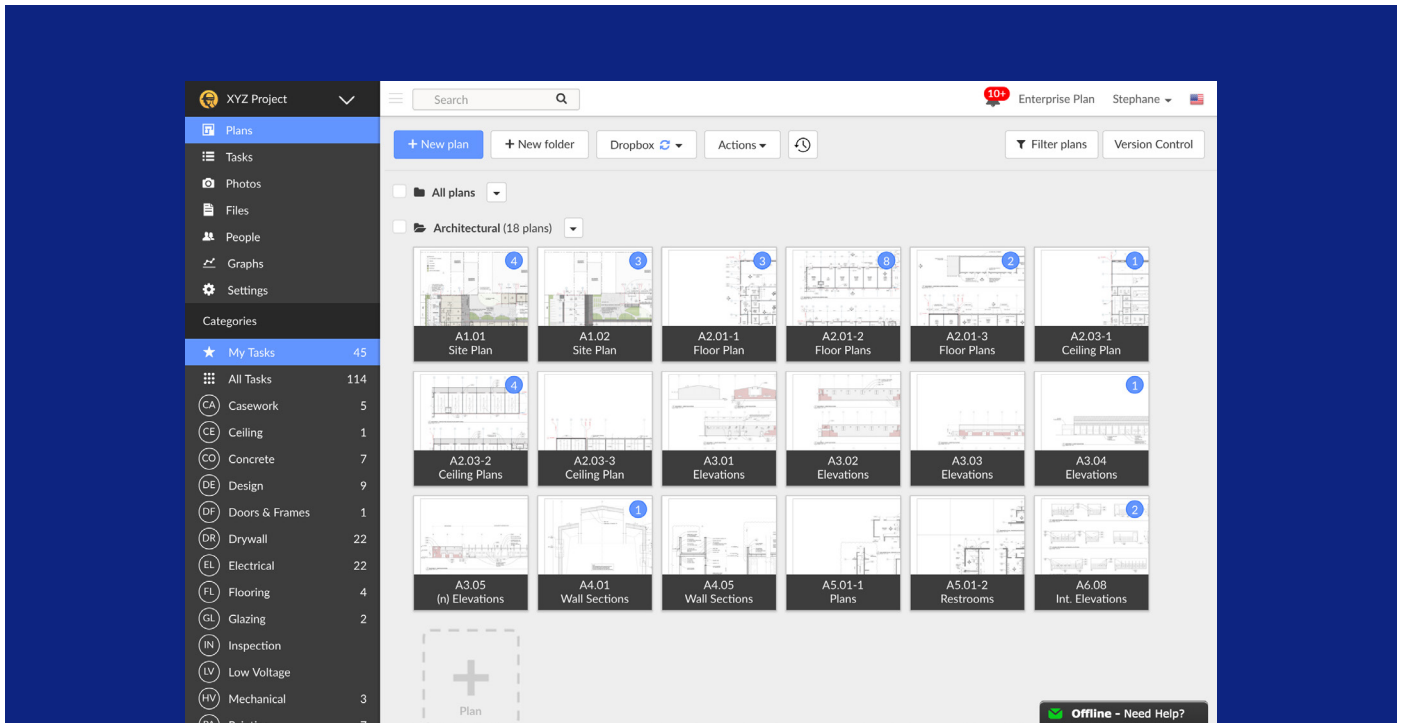

Use Fieldwire's markup tools and task management capabilities to track on-site changes and assign work to team members. The set of plans—with red-lines and progress photos—is then synced with Dropbox to share progress with the wider project team in real time.

Maintain version control, log field issues and track on-site changes in Fieldwire, even if you're offline

“Our integration with the Dropbox global collaboration platform brings real-time updates to the content that construction teams and professionals rely upon. Fieldwire users need to know when changes to projects and plans happen, which is why our two-way sync with Dropbox was developed to seamlessly centralize work, whether in the office, on the road, or at the construction site.”

Yves Frinault,
Founder and CEO
of Fieldwire

Dropbox Business is a central hub that enables project managers and general contractors to coordinate their teams and job sites to reduce overhead

- Simplify project management and remove silos. Bring together work from internal teams, contractors, architects and clients in one place, and easily search and manage files from construction sites.
- Minimize delays. Dropbox syncs 4 times faster than competitors. Get instant access to renderings, blueprints and videos without VPN or taking up space on your device.
- Work productively. Collaborate on any file type, from large CAD or BIM files to Excel spreadsheets with advanced previews—whether you’re at the office or on-site on a mobile device
- Securely control and manage your jobs with extensive security and administration features that scale with your team

Fieldwire’s construction management software provides a full-featured blueprint management solution, making it easy for users in the field to view, edit and share drawings

- The Fieldwire app makes it easy to keep your team working off of the latest file
- Access all your plans at blazing fast speed directly on your mobile or tablet regardless of connectivity
- Import and manage large quantities of construction drawings effortlessly with a blueprint management system